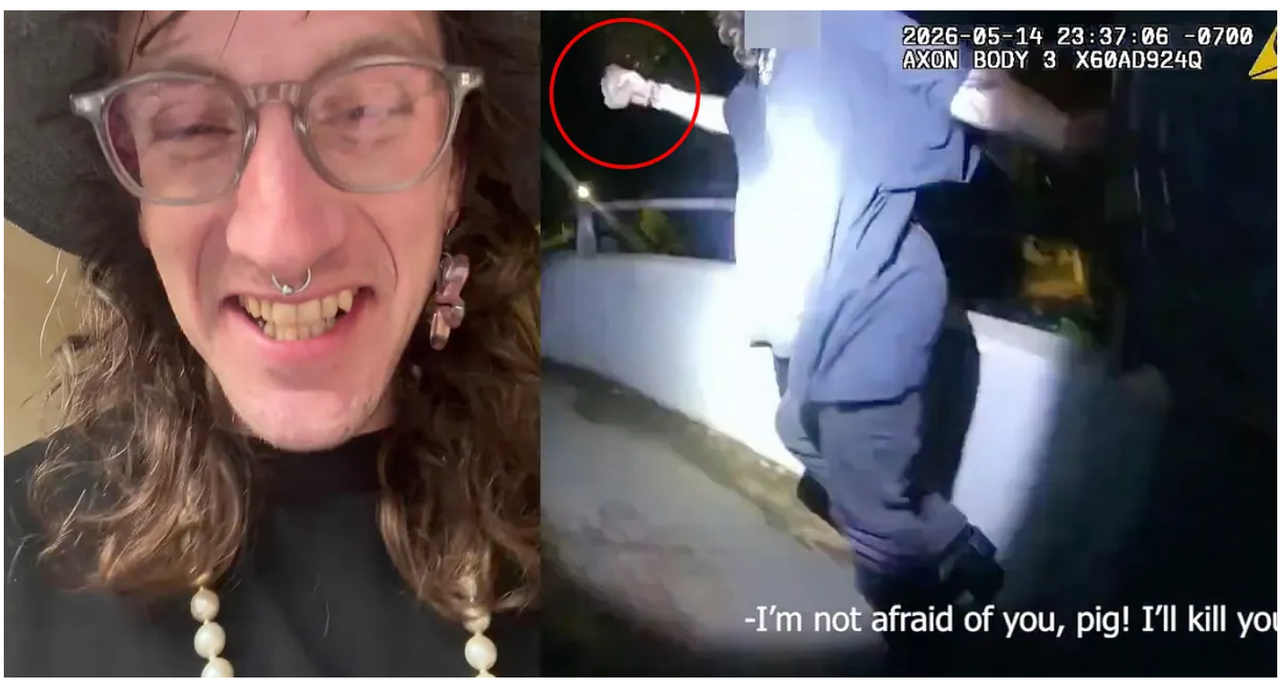
Violent Portland Suspect Freed Without Bail Allegedly Smashes Officer's Face with Softball-Sized Rock One Day Later

ANDY NGO
MAY 27, 2026

226 18 29 Sh



A violent Portland suspect accused of threatening to kill a mother and her children before allegedly hitting a police officer in the face with a softball-sized rock was released without bail just the day before.

Authorities no longer release booking photos (mugshots) in Oregon after Democrat passed a law in reaction to my 2020 BLM-Antifa reporting, but I have unmasked the face of suspect Timothy Lawrence Reed.

Read my report at The Post Millennial.

Update: On May 28, Reed paid $15,000 and bonded out of custody.

Violent Portland suspect Timothy L. Reed

Survivor Amanda Materi-Brown spoke with KATU about the home invasion allegec involving Reed.